ABOUT PAN

Our participants are at the heart of everything we do.

We work with groups of people who are often not heard in society, those who may feel lost, uprooted, anxious and unsafe. Our aim is to give them opportunities to build their self confidence and develop their sense of self worth. We work with people from all cultures and religions to encourage a world where we listen to, understand and respect each other's lives and experiences, discovering the possibilities of our rich society.

Not only do their ideas, views and needs steer all our activities, the majority of our artist-facilitators were once participants in our projects and bring vital lived experience into the work.

In the year September 2024 to August 2025 we achieved:

-  374 WORKSHOPS
-  615 PARTICIPANTS
-  11 ONGOING PROJECTS
-  8488 PARTICIPANT HOURS

WHY PAN'S WORK IS NEEDED

Trauma limits more than opportunity — it limits imagination. When someone has lived in survival mode, it becomes almost impossible to picture a different future: a job, an education, a life filled with hope and possibility. Pan exists to reignite that imagination.

Through the arts, we help people move beyond experiences of trauma to rebuild confidence, reclaim their voice, and rediscover their potential. As one participant put it, “I was broken in pieces — now I can stand on my own feet.”

Pan works with people whose lives have been shaped by complex and overlapping challenges — from displacement and discrimination to poverty and poor mental health. 94% of our participants identify as Black, South Asian, Middle Eastern, East or Southeast Asian, or Mixed heritage. Each person's story is unique, and our approach is rooted in meeting them where they are, using creativity as a tool for healing, empowerment, and social change.

Employability becomes a natural outcome of this process: many progress into education, training, or full-time work, and over 85% of our paid artist-facilitators are former participants themselves.

By transforming trauma into creativity and isolation into community, Pan creates lasting personal and social change — unlocking potential that benefits individuals, communities, and society as a whole.

Whether you are hiring for an event, running a rehearsal or using our hot desks, you know that your investment is going straight into supporting those who need it the most.
